The American College of Prosthodontists (ACP) is the professional association of dentists specializing in tooth restoration and replacement. Recently, ACP turned to Americaneagle.com for a major redesign and enhancement of their Web site with the goal of creating a site that would be appealing, easy to navigate, and would increase membership.

In order to build a site that would better serve ACP, its members, and the general public, Americaneagle.com implemented advanced search tools, a secure member login, a member Web site program, and more. With these enhancements, ACP's Web site is now a leading resource for members and the general public.
