GOVERNMENT

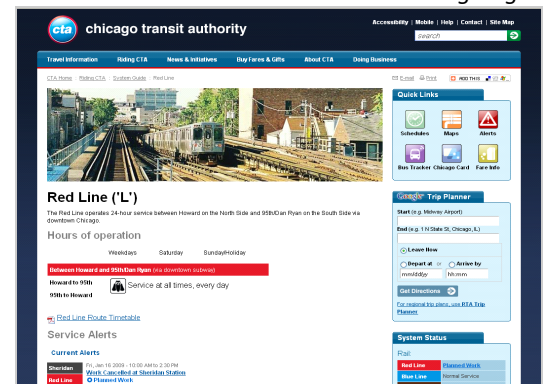

The Chicago Transit Authority (CTA), the second largest public transportation system in the nation, has recently paired up with Americaneagle.com for the full redevelopment of their main Web site, located at www.transitchicago.com.

The redevelopment project gives the site a new contemporary and cutting-edge look, with improved navigation, customer service tools, and overall functionality. Some of the many new features include: a mobile site, quick links, RSS feeds for all bus and rail lines, emergency alerts, bus tracker, and more. The new site will better serve the needs of all audience members and is expected to help increase ridership on the CTA.
