SCHOOL

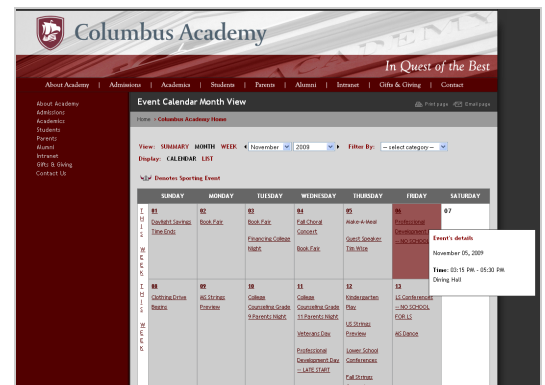

The Columbus Academy, a private college-prep school in Columbus, Ohio, came in contact with Americaneagle.com in 2007 in an effort to enhance their Web site. At that time, the school was maintaining a site that was outdated and did not accurately reflect the school's commitment to education. After reviewing the solutions of other developers, the Columbus Academy selected Americaneagle.com to completely overhaul their site graphics and add new functionality. The new site was therefore completely reorganized to better direct all site visitors, including school staff, students, parents, community members and alumni. Several tools such as homepage quick links, a dynamic events calendar, documents center, and more all work to engage visitors and make locating information and accomplishing tasks easier for all audiences.
